

LINKING PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION AND INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS: A COOPERATIVE STUDY FOR GLOBAL ADMINISTRATIONMohammad AhmadiIranian Ministry of Cooperatives, Labor and Social Welfare
Email: Ahmadi79.mo@gmail.comMahboubeh PourazimiResearch Department, Payame-Noor University of Isfahan, IRAN
Email: Mhb.p.azimi@gmail.comABSTRACT

The latest argument over organizational groups in global establishments has brought forward manifold hypothetical standpoints, investigative outlines, and organizational methods. In spite of these struggles to progress awareness over the actors, the study plan on International Public Administrations (IPAs) has done without two significant occasions: consideration on study in International Relations (IR) and the public administration and interactions among these disciplinary outlooks. In contradiction of this framework, the article is a debate of the works over the International Public Administrations in International Relations and public administration. We set up inspiration, authority, and independence of global establishments have been extensively tackled and aided to enhanced understand the activity of such non-governmental actors in worldwide strategy-making. Strategy design should be based upon data that is extremely cumulated, not comprehensive, and not proposing clear options (SM Nassery, 2019). A reduced amount of care has been given to the vital macro-level setting of policy for organizational groups, in spite of the significance in International Relations and the PA scholarship. We suggest a concentration over the action and politics as prospect opportunities for an inclusive, cooperative study for global administrations.

Keywords: Global Governments, International Organizations, IO, IPA, PA, Public Administration, International Relations.